Clinical Integrative Chinese & Western Medicine
(Pan-English Lectures)
Shanghai University of Traditional Chinese Medicine

Introduction

Established in 1956, the Shanghai University of Traditional Chinese Medicine (SHUTCM) was one of the first four TCM colleges across China. The University is located within the Zhangjiang Hi-Tech Park and Shanghai Free Trade Zone. Today, the University alumni are living in over 100 countries or territories. Jointly supported by the Ministry of Education and Shanghai Municipal Government, the University is included in the construction projects for national “First-Class Discipline” and High-Level Universities in Shanghai. SHUTCM has over 700 experts and professors, 3 academicians, 2 National Medical Master, 1 prestigious teacher of National Higher Education Institution, 76 mentors for the “National Workshop to Inherit Academic Experience of Senior Chinese Medical Doctors” and 64 municipal-celebrated TCM doctors. In 1999 and 2007, the University was twice awarded the “Excellence in Undergraduate Education” by the Ministry of Education. In 2017, the programs of Traditional Chinese Medicine and Chinese Materia Medica were selected in the National Initiative for Developing Top-notch Programs. In the recent evaluation conducted by the Ministry of Education, 3 programs including TCM, Chinese Materia Medica and Integrative Chinese and Western Medicine were graded A+.

There are more than 7,000 full-time students, and more than 15% are degree students. The University is cooperating with several world-class universities, and has set up 10 international centers of traditional Chinese medicine. The first Confucius Institute of Traditional Chinese Medicine is set up in the United States. Academic Year & Curricula
This program is consisted of 5 academic years, 3 trimesters in each year.
